

To Employees:

Your employer is registered with the Florida Department of Revenue as an employer who is liable under the Florida Reemployment Assistance Law. This means that you, as an employee, are covered by the Reemployment Assistance Program, formerly known as the Unemployment Compensation Program.

Reemployment assistance taxes finance benefits paid to eligible unemployed workers. Those taxes are paid by your employer and, by law, cannot be deducted from your wages.

You may be eligible to receive reemployment assistance benefits if you meet the following requirements:

- You must be totally or partially unemployed through no fault of your own.
- You must apply for benefits at connect.myflorida.com.
- You must register for work at employflorida.com.
- You must have a history of sufficient employment and wages.
- You must be able to work and available for work.

You may file a claim for partial unemployment for any week you work less than full time due to a lack of work if your wages during that week are less than your weekly benefit amount.

You must report all earnings while claiming benefits. Failure to do so is a third-degree felony with a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Discharge for misconduct connected with work may result in disqualification, and the disqualification may remain in effect until you have earned a specified amount of wages through new employment.

Voluntarily quitting a job without good cause attributable to the employer may result in disqualification. The disqualification may remain in effect until you have earned a set amount of wages through new employment.
